Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurBroken Syntax is a collection of poems, divided into two sections, written over a three week period, recapturing recurring traditional motifs of sex and death, psychological sadomasochism, and composed with the requisite irony that, one would hope, disavows sentimentality and allows for the mandatory respect of one's experiences. The lyricism - poetic form - is, by definition, however unfashionable, what "works" on the human body, like music: a sacred form, a rhythmic echo of selves....Prsentation de l'diteurBroken Syntax is a collection of poems, divided into two sections, written over a three week period, recapturing recurring traditional motifs of sex and death, psychological sadomasochism, and composed with the requisite irony that, one would hope, disavows sentimentality and allows for the mandatory respect of one's experiences.
